

Specialty: Project management

We help you run smooth projects for new plants, upgrades, and optimization projects

Are your projects successful? Are quality, costs, and schedule on the mark?

Do you have employees, specialists, who can give full attention to your projects without compromising their daily work?

- Is your project complex and your approach not yet definite enough to plan?
- Does your project affect several business areas?
- Does it involve financial risks?
- Do your business results rely on the successful completion of your project?

We help you complete complex projects on time, economically, and with high quality.

Depending on the size and complexity of your project, our services for project management can include:

- We help you prepare for and plan your project: formulating objectives, preparing the project requirements or project manual, defining the project phases and milestones, helping assemble a project team.
- We lead or direct your project or sub-project, responsible for defining the content and the time frame.
- We make complex projects transparent by structuring, determining capacities and personnel requirements, and defining schedules.
- We continually collect data on project progress and compare it with the planning data; if we find anything out of order we take corrective action.
- We ensure coordination and the exchange of information among all involved parties: responsible persons, the client, engineers, suppliers and authorities. We organise and lead team meetings.
- We create and update task lists and reports for the preparation, execution, control and close-out of your project.

In your interest, during project management we place great value on these points:

- The failure of a project is usually due to people, not technology, so we pay special attention to the team. We see to it that working relationships remain harmonious in spite of differences of technical discipline and ways of thinking. We make sure every team member subordinates his personal goals to those of the project. Everyone involved in the project must see himself chiefly as provider of services to you, the client.
- We promote an optimal exchange of information among all involved parties, especially the project owner or supervisory committee.
- Our "external" neutral point of view and judgement can be just what is needed to free thinking from rigid mindsets.
- We find solutions that allow uninterrupted operation of your plant.
- We keep your project on track even when tough problems arise. We check ourselves constantly: Are we on track? Are we on schedule? Do we have the costs under control? Will our results meet the expectations of the client?

Our competent engineers have been active in the paper industry for over 20 years and have extensive experience in managing and conducting successful projects. If you like, we will be glad to give you the names of some of our clients as references.
